

122 Betsy

Betsy DeVos is arguably the least qualified Secretary of Education in the history of this country; I see her as a traitor to the ideals supported by nearly 400 years of public education in America. In essence, she is seeking control of the voting population – because education and voting are inherently entwined, the limitation of quality education for all ultimately affects every person in the country.

She has used her position to promote personal agendas, and to deny federal support for disadvantaged students and other vulnerable populations. Her proposals include:

- Reformulating eligibility for Pell Grants
- Using school vouchers for private and religious schools
- Modifying Title IX protections for sexual assault victims on college campuses
- Failing to protect the civil rights of LGBTQ students
- Redirecting funds earmarked for special education, student and teacher enrichment programs including defunding Special Olympics

And she proposed providing guns to classroom teachers – using federal education funds.

Luckily, a significant number of Betsy's proposals have been met with derision, lawsuits and sanctions by such powerful entities as the Supreme Court, Congress and the National Education Association.
